

INVESTMENT OBJECTIVE

The Global X Colombia Select ETF will seek to replicate the returns, before fees and expenses, of the S&P Colombia Select Index ("the index"). S&P Dow Jones Indices LLC ("S&P") designed the index to track the performance of the largest and most liquid stocks listed on the Bolsa de Valores de Colombia (BVC). S&P's selection universe for the index is based on all the securities within the S&P Colombia BMI.

¹The intraday indicative value for an ETF is normally published every 15 seconds under a separate symbol on the consolidated tape and is calculated on the trading day based on the latest sale prices of the securities specified for creation and amortization, plus the amounts estimated in cash that are associated with the creation unit, all this according to each participation in the ETF. The intraday indicative value has been designed to give investors an idea of the relationship between a basket of securities that are representative of the securities held in the ETF and the price of ETF shares in intraday transactions.

²An estimate of the annualized yield an investor would receive if the most recent distribution rate stayed the same for the next twelve months, stated as a percentage of the net asset value per unit on the date before the ex-dividend date of the current distribution.

³The yield an investor would have received if they had held the ETF over the last twelve months stated as a percentage of the net asset value per unit on the last business day of the most recent month end.
